A group of four young adults (three men and one woman) are walking through a historic town square in the Czech Republic. They are dressed in casual, contemporary clothing. The background features traditional European architecture, including a large, ornate church tower with a green roof and a red-tiled roof. The scene is set in a cobblestone-paved square with stone buildings. The text "Canadians love the Czech Republic" is overlaid at the bottom of the image.

Why to go this summer?

A nighttime photograph of Prague, Czech Republic. The Prague Castle complex is illuminated against the dark sky, with the Gothic spires of St. Vitus Cathedral being the most prominent feature. Below the castle, the Charles Bridge spans the Vltava River, its stone arches and statues lit up. The water of the river reflects the lights from the bridge and the castle. In the foreground, a man in a dark suit and light shirt is partially visible, looking towards the camera.
